About

Robert Price has been consulting education and non-profit organizations for over a decade. In education he stimulates change in schools from the ground up, leading teacher workshops, doing in-class demonstrations, leading principal and superintendent strategy sessions, and facilitating work groups at all levels. In the non-profit world, Robert helps assess and build upon existing strengths using systems thinking and visual mapping techniques. The results are a clearer view of the organization, and a sustainable program for reaching its potential.
